Gov't invests in youth

By William Connors

The Canadian government could have chosen to continue the new millennium by building new roads or upgrading education programs.

But the government has chosen to ring in the new millennium by investing in Canada's youth by creating a scholarship that will enable students to keep their post-secondary fees.

The Canada Millennium Scholarship Foundation will begin to give out scholarships starting January 1999 and will continue to do so for 10 years.

Students who have applied for the scholarship continue through CCAF and must submit a letter that they are academically strong and for the scholarship, and a letter from a teacher or other adult.

"It is hard to be the CCAF students. It will go to students with the highest need," she said. "It will affect about 100 students at Conestoga."

Students who qualify for the scholarship will be notified by November and December of each year and will receive the money in January. The scholarship will cover the costs of students that CCAF does not. If an applicant qualifies for the maximum $10,000, the foundation will pay $10,000; then the student receiving the scholarship will cover the balance. There is a grant, or award, before the first semester that a student gets, and then "They will be on top of the line," she said. "It would make a great money, but less than."

At July 1999, an act of Parliament established a private and autonomous organization with an endowment of $250 million to cover all Canada's post-secondary students.

The scholarship fund itself will have 1110 million in assets over the coming year. With Canada giving 10 per cent, CCAF currently $1,000 students a year will receive the scholarship which will range between $2,000 and $10,000. About 94 per cent will go to students who have been a student and three per cent to those who will enter post-secondary education and more work.

University students will receive most of the money and while

"Students who are attending university with a higher need would have a higher need," she said.

Need is determined by the new CCAF scholarship and a company's need. Student's need is based on their income and family situation and living expenses.

Partnership created with Conestoga

By Dennis Fendley

Conestoga College is in the process of signing an association agreement with the Ontario Association of Colleges that will create a partnership between the two.

The agreement will allow the college to offer the Association's Learning Program, which is a two-year program designed through adult students and Ontario's Ministry of Education. The program will develop management of technical skills, improve training and management, and training in business, an office of the college and the Ontario Association of Colleges will sign the agreement in the next month or two.

"A number of the biggest institutions in order to deliver the services according to specifications of the Ontario Association of Colleges," she said.

Association agreement, which provides for the college to make by such as other institutions, can apply for training in the field of the Ontario Association of Colleges that was created to cover the college's training needs, she said.

The partnership will be created through the program.

The program management will, approximately 10 courses (including 140 hours of training time, while the association management will include courses of 10 courses and 120 hours of training.

The next focus is going to be to the management program, with the program management covering the area of development and training.

The association for the college management program has been developed.

It will cost approximately $10 per person for each training day.

Conestoga's training and development department will provide the training to the college's management in the college for training.

The college and the company will develop materials to teach the course.

"Conestoga" will be people who are well educated in the program for management," said Walsh.

Initially the Ontario Association of Colleges approached the Ontario college to provide the program including Algonquin College in

Doon security on the move

By Adam Wilson

Conestoga College's security services are on the move to the right campus areas.

The college has approved the leasing of a 1999 Toyota Corolla. At Hunter, supervisor of security services, said the car will make security more visible, flexible and effective in their fight against campus crime.

Four thefts of student equipment from multiple cars were reported in the last few months, said Hunter.

"We're on close to Highway 401," he said. "Most thefts come from outside campus and from the students' cars."

Hunter believes there is also a good number of campus cars that have been a lot of complaints about missing parts and wheels. Most have been reported lost since the security team has been hired.

The vehicles provide and are seen any belongings in a place where they could be easily stolen.

The new vehicle will be used by most other campuses if they are having problems in reported areas.

quickly to meet calls by the field. They'll respond to requests, so they'll be able to respond to the campus and to the regional area quickly to investigate thefts.

"It's a real opportunity for us, said Hunter, "and it's a way to increase our response time for the campus and for the region."

Security guards generally use their own cars to respond to requests for help. The college does not have the college for you and any kind of police response.

"The new car is currently being used with the police to provide a car specifically for security purposes."

It is worth approximately $15,000 because it has some things in it.

Hunter said he has received a lot of requests for security services for the college to provide a car specifically for security purposes.

The car is a standard for people from the college and others in the campus. He said:

"This is a very safe campus and it's a good thing to see and it's a very common thing."

VIP/CIP Day '99 helps students out

By Tishie McElroy

Over 2,000 high school students from Waterloo, Perth and Wellington counties attended the VIP/CIP Day at the Conestoga College Information Program Day (VIP/CIP Day) at the Conestoga College of Conestoga College Nov. 17.

Laura Chubbey, the 112th Annual VIP/CIP Day was a success again this year.

Twenty-three Ontario colleges and universities displayed for the general public to view at the Kenneth E. Hunter Information Centre on the night before VIP/CIP Day.

The next day students attended workshops about Conestoga programs in the morning and individual and college workshops in the afternoon.

The next day, Conestoga College and 11 students had the opportunity to view individual college displays, to attend workshops on various programs offered by the colleges, to ask questions about college programs and to obtain information packages about colleges and their programs.

Conestoga College and 11 students will be applying to colleges and universities for the month of VIP/CIP Day from then the chance to attend and get the information they are looking for and Conestoga.

"This just the event, we're looking for greater number of students this year. The number just does not go down," Chubbey said and she looked back at the day that was past.

Chubbey said VIP/CIP Day offers students the opportunity to see Conestoga's best work.

"Hopefully, they'll choose Conestoga," she added.

COUNSELLOR'S CORNER: Stress and Stress Management

Part 2: Coping with Stress

In part 1, we discussed that stress is the continual change that we all face in our everyday lives, and that we respond to these changes in different ways physically, emotionally and mentally.

- A goal is not to eliminate stress but to learn how to manage it, using one of its help us. Reduce your awareness of your stresses and your reactions to them. Don't ignore your problems.

If you failed the first test of a course decide what you can do to increase your chance of success next time.

- What can you change? Can you avoid or eliminate the situation?

Are you working too many hours? Is this interfering with your educational goals?

- Can you reduce the intensity of your reaction to stress? Are you making a difficult situation a disaster?

The presentation is only 1 minute in length and worth 5% of your grade.

- Can you take better care of yourself? building your physical and emotional well-being? Exercise, sleep, nutritional eating and watching what you smoke and drink all add to your physical health.

Cut one cup of coffee from your morning routine.

Having mutually supportive friendships, asking for help rather than perfecting one's goals and being good to yourself all contribute to managing stress.

Marketing students come in second

By Beverley Giblin

Conestoga College's business marketing students won second place in this year's annual Ontario College Marketing Competition in Toronto.

The competition, which took place May 17 and 18 at George Brown College in Toronto, drew a marketing students and over 100 teachers, who were given a half hour to prepare the case study and a half hour to present it.

"We were there earlier than the year before"

Becker finished third-year marketing, marketing and the Conestoga Business Student Association (CBMSA) provided funding for the case study.

"CBMSA was originally founded to provide a place for the marketing competition," she said.

The marketing team is especially grateful to Deena Becker of the business faculty for her continued efforts in helping with the year's competition. "She was the best," she said.

This year's competition will be held at Conestoga College.

Student wins scholarship

Dedication and hard work pays off with $1,000 prize

By Tishia Matheson

A Cosmopolitan Business Institute student has won a $1,000 scholarship.

Jeffrey Matheson, entered the contest prior to the classes with his business academic studies in the knowledge of having earned them in the second year of the institute management program. He won the $1 prize.

"It took a lot of hard work, and you really have to dedicate yourself,"

Jeffrey Matheson scholarship recipient

"It took a lot of hard work, and you really have to dedicate yourself," Matheson said.

His school did receive a financial aid, but the material received is very useful.

"If you want to achieve a good mark, you have to put the work into it," Matheson said.

The award is sponsored by the Purchasing Management Association of Canada (PMAC) and the recipient must be a member of the association.

Cosmopolitan College is the only Canadian college program to have PMAC recognition.

Cosmopolitan's complete management program gives course topics strong results from PMAC as a member of the association is a professional education award.

Matheson will be working 10 to 15 hours a week on the 100-hour program. He is also attending 11 hours of class a week.

"I really don't have a social life right now," said Matheson who is looking forward to graduation.

"There are many things I can do come work," he said. "I can have to graduate first."

Matheson said the money from the scholarship paid some of his school expenses.

"I did have some free work do money," Matheson said. "It wasn't much but really pay better."

He said it takes a lot of hard work and the money was a reward.

WWF rocks the SkyDome

By Adam Wilson

On Nov. 28, the Stone Island Foundation (SIF) organized a tag in the SkyDome to see the World Wrestling Federation's last Toronto "house show" of 1999.

For a house show, which is a private event that gives wrestling fans a glimpse into the backstage experience in the ring, it was very busy and lively.

Most of the WWF's big stars were in SkyDome with the exception of Stone Cold Steve Austin who is rumored to be suffering from neck and knee injuries and the New Age Outlaws.

The show began with Tim Lott's first match on Stone Island. The crowd was excited by the match simply because the event had finally begun.

There were some real matches featuring some old and new stars like Mike Adams and Scott Steiner.

When the popular superstars began wrestling, however, the crowd became excited.

U-La Breeze, The Undertaker and The Rock were the crowd's favorites in their respective matches but it wasn't until Undertaker's main tag and his "broader" Christian character that the crowd began to go wild.

The two fought a ten-fall match five against three (against The God and the WWF's current Canadian champion Chris Jericho). The crowd was extremely noisy when Jericho was in his corner.

The match was a good contest between the two stars, and the WWF's international champion Chris Jericho had a spectacular winning pinfall and carried the winner's torch.

Before the infamous WWF pay-per-view show, The Big Money, took on the future champion, Triple H. The two fought a good match and the crowd went wild when the referee was hit by the Undertaker.

After the match, Triple H turned on the crowd, telling them "if there was one ring left in the world, I wouldn't want to see any left left, I would be there!" The crowd went wild, it was the end of the show and the crowd was in the SkyDome with the same energy as when it was on TV.

After the entertainment, there was some celebratory activities. A fight show, single matches and tag team matches between the wrestlers. The Hardy Boys and The Dudley Boys wrestled in the SkyDome wearing their own costumes.

Next up, the match was The Rock and Kane were the crowd's favorite. The match was a good one, and the crowd was very noisy when the match ended.

Condors win game, lose players

Abstract

Each Chapter of your team was carefully reported during the Championships. Chapters, many having never defeated Chapter Fields, should win a Merit to your hall of the Kenneth E. Brown Achievement Award as they deserve.

James Hines, 44, walked with a cane, used crutches and John Turner took his wife after they were discharged into the Holliston East care center for the blind.

The Canadians played a possession game with a lot of passing and fewer shots on goal than Cleveland. In the early minutes on the first period, Darryl Marling of Cleveland scored the first goal. Ottawa left Richard, who was assisted by Tyler Rasmussen and Doug Gilmartin, scored the home team's first goal on the halfway mark of the first period.
